MEDDRAYSINTELL WELCOMES JEAN-LUC VANDERHEYDEN AS ADVISOR

Jean-Luc Vanderheyden joins MEDDraysintell as Advisor and brings his extended experience (35 years) in the field of nuclear medicine.

Jean-Luc is a Doctor of Pharmacy and PhD Analytical Chemist (Université Libre de Bruxelles and University of Cincinnati), with a strong expertise in scientific, commercial and research analyses related to advanced technologies involving all forms of imaging, isotope supply worldwide and radiation therapy. He has worked in small and large biotechnology and pharmaceutical R&D environment. He founded JLVM Consulting LLC in the USA in 2012 to provide his expertise in the areas of pharmacy, radiochemistry and radiopharmacy. Jean-Luc Vanderheyden was a Visiting Associate Professor at the University of Massachusetts Medical School. He is also a member of the Quantitative Imaging Biomarkers Alliance (QIBA) technical committee on PET, the American Chemical Society (ACS), the Society of Nuclear Medicine (SNMMI) and the European Association of Nuclear Medicine (EANM).

"With the addition of Jean-Luc Vanderheyden, MEDDraysintell is growing in an unique expert driven structure capable to help customers better understand the complexity of the radiation healthcare industry, including nuclear medicine and proton therapy", commented Paul-Emmanuel Goethals, co-Founder & Partner.

MEDDraysintell recently published its new Nuclear Medicine Report & Directory Edition-2020, which provides in some 2,900 pages a description of about 830 radiodiagnostics and radiotherapeutics, together with a comprehensive profile of nearly 320 companies active in nuclear medicine, radiopharmaceutical development production and sale around the world. Earlier this year, MEDDraysintell also published its unique Cyclotrons directory which provides an extensive review of all cyclotrons installed or recently sold in all countries and regions of the world with an exhaustive profile of the companies currently developing and/or supplying cyclotrons.
